PURDY ELEMENTARY SCHOOL NEWSLETTER

APRIL 2014

Dear Parents,

As we head into April we have a very busy schedule ahead of us which is led by our School Chef in Residency. The residency, headed by Chef Tyler Sailsbery, will run for a little over three weeks beginning with a kick off assembly on March 31st at 8:30 AM. Tyler will bring in a cow and all students will make a dairy product...perfect for Wisconsin.

Each grade level K-5 will experience lessons on healthy foods from the producer (farms, gardens, greenhouses, trout ponds, etc.) to the table. Students will learn about nutritious choices, eating locally produced foods, food preparation, geography, science, math and related reading and writing skills.

Chef Sailsbery will work with one to two grade levels per day with each grade level going on a field trip to visit a local producer of food. Each day's events will be recorded and with highlights available for playback almost immediately. (See related press release in the newsletter).

Also, we have another Artist in Residence artist, Mary Wallace. She will be here in May working with 3rd, 4th and 5th graders creating colorful wool vessels using various types of wool fibers.

Recently our school hosted three tours including two from Belleville, Wisconsin and an assessment visit. All visits looked at our literacy program. In each visit the visitors were very complimentary of our staff's efforts and how well they are implementing our award winning Comprehensive Literacy Program. For our staff it is just another day of instruction but for me it is an extraordinary achievement for our staff and students.

I just turned in my budget for next year. Besides the essentials, priorities include effective support for our teachers, ample supplies of new reading books, continuous progress towards 1-1 technology so any student can have technology whenever needed and safety improvements on the playground.

As the year progresses, Dr. Zaspel will be advertising for my replacement ahead of my retirement now scheduled for July 25 right after summer school.

Lastly, we have an important referendum on April 1. While it will not increase your taxes, it will provide additional needed funding for our schools...money we can not get from the State. Please, we need every resident parent to vote on April 1. Don't let other voters decide this referendum for you and your children.

Sincerely,

Rick Brietzke, Principal
Purdy Elementary School

MARKET DAY NEWS

Thank you to all that participated in the Market Day Bonus Days sale of desserts. We sold 100 desserts to reach the 30% profit goal. The top sellers were Alyssa Dahl, Aiden Janecek and Dane Brost. Congratulations to them as they each won a gift card to Marcus Theaters. With the sale of the desserts and our regular Market Day grocery order we raised $550.00 for the month of March.

Thank you to everyone that has purchased Market Day this year, because of you we have exceeded our goal of $3000.00 for Purdy Elementary. This extra money will be used to fund our Artist in Residence programs. Continue to look for the flyer each month that comes home with your child.

PTO SCHOLASTIC BOOK FAIR

COME TO THE
PURDY ARTS FESTIVAL AND FOOD TASTINGS ON APRIL 22nd at 6:30 PM

On Tuesday, April 22nd at 6:30 p.m., all Purdy families are invited to attend the annual Purdy Arts Festival and new this year, a Chef in Residency Food Tasting. You will be treated to beautiful art adorning our hallways and 3rd, 4th and 5th grade students will perform enjoyable music on the multi-purpose room stage. Students and parents will also get a chance to taste some of the food prepared by students and Chef Tyler Sailsbery.

In art class, all students in grades kindergarten through fifth grade chose what they felt was their best work. Paintings, drawings, clay sculptures, masks and more are all on display in the hallways and placed in the display case by the office. Remember that the Arts Festival is the kickoff for our annual art show which will remain on display until the middle of May. Students in fifth grade have also been busy creating a chandelier that will be hung from the skylight by the milk cooler, very near the early childhood classroom. It was inspired by glass artist Dale Chihuly and will be composed of various plastic bottles and cups creatively hung together to form a "glass-like" sculpture.

On the stage in the multi-purpose room starting at 6:30 p.m., third and fourth grade students will perform songs that they have learned on their recorders. At approximately 7:00, fifth grade students in orchestra and band will perform. Then, around 7:15 the choir will perform. Remember these times are approximate as there will be a transition period between performances.

The schedule of events tentatively will be:

6:30—7:30 PM: View the Art Show; visit the Book Fair, Taste Food, stop by the Volunteer table

6:30 PM: 3rd Grade Recorders (On the Stage)

April 1st Referendum MAKE AN INFORMED DECISION A Letter from the Board of Education

Fort Atkinson enjoys a strong school system. We take pride in providing students a place to learn, grow and achieve. Our programs have been nationally recognized. We're known as a District of choice. Our six well-maintained buildings with access to contemporary technology serve as the hub for many community activities.

None of this would be possible without the continued support of local citizens.

Our District takes great pride in the greater Fort Atkinson community, our role within it and what we collectively offer: Excellent schools, an independent healthcare system, quality city services, a diverse business base and dedicated people. These all contribute to the vitality we enjoy locally.

Quite simply, this referendum is about our students, our community and the quality of education we deliver.

If the referendum fails, the Board will face over a million-dollar deficit in the first year. Any cut would reduce the programs we currently offer and inhibit our ability to continuously improve to meet changing students' needs.

We encourage you to become informed.

The website is intended to explain how the referendum will help meet District needs with a projected neutral tax levy impact. Please discuss the referendum with your friends, coworkers and neighbors. Visit our schools and see the great things happening every day for our children.

Much is at stake. Educate yourself and make an informed decision for your community. As Board of Education members, we strongly encourage you to exercise your right to vote on April 1st.

STUDENT AND FAMILY INFORMATION IS AVAILABLE FOR RELEASE TO CERTAIN PARTIES

Periodically parents inquire about the release of a phone number, address or parent name to those that might need to know. This is permissible and does not violate any privacy laws. Purdy Elementary School only releases information to families within the school and only if such information has not been noted as confidential. Most typically such requests are for birthday parties. The school does not release such information to commercial companies nor does it release non-listed or non-published numbers without prior approval.

Each year the District posts an announcement regarding the release of school directory data. If no objections are raised to the potential release of information to responsible parties then the school can release it. Questions? Call the Purdy office.

PRESS RELEASE PREPARED BY CHEF-IN-RESIDENT P.R. PERSON
(BETH GEHRED)

Culinary Artist in Residence Program announced at area school Fort Atkinson WI.

Chef Tyler Sailsbery has accepted an invitation by Purdy Elementary School's PTO to serve as their Artist in Residence for the month of April. The young chef, who has opened three restaurants in the area, including the acclaimed Black Sheep Restaurant in Whitewater, is serving as a culinary artist for the kindergarten through fifth grade students and plans a culminating feast for students, school staff and parents on Earth Day.

Sailsbery is a farm boy who was trained in the culinary arts and also attended UW-Whitewater for business. While still in college, he leased space within The Fuzzy Pig to run The Heritage Restaurant. In 2010, he moved to his own space in Whitewater and opened The Black Sheep, a farm to table gourmet restaurant, with ingredients locally sourced for freshness and distinction. Chef Tyler is in the middle of opening his latest restaurant, Casual Joe's, also in Whitewater, which will feature barbecue and similar fare, but the local sourcing ethic will remain.

"What excites me about this opportunity at Purdy," Sailsbery said, "is the chance I'll have to work with all the kids for an extended period. I'm hoping to connect students to all the good farm products in the area, and make it seem normal to cook healthy foods that taste great, no matter what age the eater happens to be."

Chef Tyler will have help organizing Chef in Residence activities from partnerships with teachers, staff, and parents in the school and CESA 2 Cooperative Purchasing, out of Whitewater, which has made inroads in helping all the schools in its purchasing cooperative make links to local sources for cafeteria menu items. Farm to School volunteers in the Eat Here, Eat Well of Jefferson County Coalition are also pitching in to help make the events run smoothly.

"I hope to be able to take kids on field trips to places like Rushing Waters [Trout Farm] in Palmyra," Sailsbery said. "Obviously, it is not a great time of year to go on farm tours, but I'm hoping to bring goats into the school, and have a milking demo and have farmers come in and talk to the kids."

He also plans to feature a new farm product each day of the residency, and work with one grade per day. He plans to introduce how the product was grown or made, interesting principles about its use, and gear the information so that all students will have a chance to participate. Teachers, led by library media specialist Cathy Daly, are already developing curriculum that ties into planting, growing, cooking or eating foods.

The Chef in Residence program, like all farm to school efforts, ties individual health with life skills and emphasizes the local farm and food culture of an area by introducing institutional food preparers to local growers.

"I'd like to begin to reverse the trend that it is easier for a school, or any institution for that matter, to buy a tomato from a California or Mexican farm than it is to get one from down the road – even in the right season. Rebuilding connections to one another is something art can do well – even culinary art," Sailsbery said.

The idea for a Culinary Artist in Residency program came from principal Rick Brietzke.

"I was so impressed when Tyler came last year and did a Chef in the Classroom event for the day," Brietzke said. "He made a sweet potato pizza and sweet potato ice cream and the kids loved it. I particularly liked how he worked with students and held their interest. I think there can be a lot of learning built around food production – and I like the health aspects of it, too. I'm looking forward to it."

The students and staff, no doubt, will too. Gourmet fresh food is not the usual fare in our school cafeterias.

Better Birthday Treats Save 8,000 Calories

“My daughter's school principal is requesting ideas for alternative snacks for parents to send to school to celebrate their child's birthday, rather than the usual cake/brownies, etc. Do you have any handouts/suggestions that I could use?”

– Mary Therese Maslanka, RD, LDN, Registered and Licensed Dietitian, Mount Prospect, IL

Our guidelines:

- fewer than 100 calories
- parents can make it quickly
- kids want to eat it
- can't make too much mess

Mary pointed out that some of the classes have 23-30 students, so with 36 weeks of school, that is almost 1 sugar-laden treat per week!

If you were serving cake or regular cupcakes each time, that is about 9,000-12,000 calories per school year from birthday parties!

Our treats below ring in annually at about 2,500 calories and this saves, on average, about 8,000 calories per child per school year, which is quite a bit.

Item	Calories
Large cookie	450
Brownie	450
Sheetcake	425
Cupcake	300
Mini cupcake	150
Mini muffin	110
Rice Krispies Treat	90
Fig Newton	45
Fresh fruit, 1/2 cup	40
Vanilla Wafer	18
Mini rice cake	10

Use candles, sprinkles and decorator's frosting for a fun, festive touch. It is best to offer a variety of cookies and fruit - even if you had the perfect ice cream cake there are kids who don't like that - they always love a choice.

Here are 4 different presentations:

Rice Krispies Bowl -
90 calories each
($3.99 for 16 of them)
Arrange in a bowl and unwrap one, placing it in the center. Decorate with frosting and a candle for a treat that is easy to serve.

Dip Me Sheet -
60 calories per serving
($12 for cookies and fruit)
Place a variety of fruits, caramel dip and vanilla wafers in an attractive square pan. Decorate with balloon candles.

Newton's Fruit Cake -
85 calories cookie/fruit
($12 for cookies, fruit)
Place cookies around the outside of the pan and fill with dried or fresh fruits. Add sprinkles and then adhere 8 candles to the tops of the cookies with frosting

Rice Cookie Cake and Fruit -
50 calories cookie/fruit
($5 for rice cakes and berries)
Arrange them in bowls and garnish a few with frosting and candles - yummy!

One more idea: cut layers of cake out of a melon and decorate with grapes and berries on skewers.

Internet Safety for Your Family

The Internet can connect you and your family to all types of resources. At your computer, you and your family can read the latest news, look up information, listen to music, play games, buy things, or e-mail friends. The possibilities for learning and exploring on the Internet are endless. However, not all information and resources are safe and reliable. Read more about how to make sure you and your family's experience on the Internet is safe, educational, and fun.

Setting the rules

It's important to have a set of rules when your children use the Internet. Make sure your children understand what you consider appropriate and what areas are off limits. Let them know that the rules are for their safety.

Safety first - The following are tips you can teach your children about online safety:

- NEVER give out personal information unless a parent says it's OK. This includes your name, address, phone number, age, race, school name or location, or friends' names.
- NEVER share passwords, even with friends.
- NEVER meet a friend you only know online in person unless a parent says it's OK. It's best if a parent goes along and to meet in a public place. (Older teens that may choose not to tell a parent and go alone should at least go with a friend and meet in a public place.)
- NEVER respond to messages that make you feel uncomfortable or hurt your feelings. Ignore these messages, stop all communication, and tell a parent or another adult you trust right away.

Good behavior - The following is what you can teach your children about how they should act online:

- NEVER send mean messages online. NEVER say something online that you wouldn't say to someone in person. Bullying is wrong whether it's done in person or online.
- NEVER use the Internet to make someone look bad. For example, never send messages from another person's e-mail that could get that person into trouble.
- NEVER plagiarize. It's illegal to copy online information and say that you wrote it.

Time limits

Surfing the Web should not take the place of other important activities, including homework, playing outside or spending time with friends. The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends limiting total screen time in front of a TV or computer to no more than 1 to 2 hours a day for children older than 2 years. An alarm clock or timer can help you keep track of time.

Other steps you can take - In addition to setting clear rules, you can do the following to create a safer online experience:

- Surf the Web with your children.
- Put the computer in a room where you can monitor your children. Computers should never be placed in a room where a door can be closed or a parent excluded.
- Use tracking software. It's a simple way to keep track of where your children have been on the Web. However, nothing can replace supervision.
- Install software or services that can filter or block offensive Web sites and material. Be aware, however, that many children are smart enough to find ways around the filters. Also, you may find that filters may be more restrictive than you want.
- Find out what the Internet use policies are at your child's school or at your library.

If you or your children come across anything illegal or threatening, you should report it to the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children's CyberTipline. For more information, call 800/THE-LOST (800/843-5678) or visit the Web site at www.cybertipline.com.
